

Learning Disabilities

So your child has learning problems in school!

Is it laziness...or could it be a learning disability?

Did you know that 50% of students receiving special education services through public schools are identified as having learning disabilities?

Famous people such as Albert Einstein and Winston Churchill had a learning disability. It is possible to be highly successful and learning disabled at the same time. With proper special educational intervention and the support of family, your child can live up to his/her potential.

Some symptoms of learning disability:

- Difficulties with reading and spelling
- Difficulties in learning letters and their sounds
- Difficulties in correctly doing math operations
- And more...

How can you help your child?

- Get a timely and accurate diagnosis
- Find appropriate special education support.

Our Full Service Learning Management Service

From diagnosis to intervention...we take care of you.

When you choose to work with us, you have access to our network of distinguished professionals. We can:

- Arrange a psycho-educational assessment.
- Plan and provide proper special education intervention.
- Monitor your child's progress.
- Direct you to the appropriate tax professionals to obtain maximum tax breaks.

Avoid the stress and frustration of navigating through the tangled web of special education services alone! Our professional support is available every step of the way.

Call Dr. Winnifred Tang & Associates Learning Management Inc. to find out how we can help your child achieve academic success.

Dr. Winnifred Tang & Associates
Learning Management Inc.

604.222.1688

www.learn2manageLD.com